The links between the North West of England is, Manchester and Liverpool.

Although the train routes from North and South could be improved in my opinion is that the route on the West coast is a total waste of time.

I feel that Cardiff is remote from North and their policies still are around the South party of Wales and that north is an afterthought.

I feel that the Welsh language policy is against any English speaking Welsh person as that second rate people are employed for only one reason that they can speak Welsh.

On broadband to provide it in the usual area on some property cost about £1,000 to them. How boys. The fact that if you want better mobile signal is the mast must be allow to a height of 80meters at not 25 without planning permission.
Connectivity
Rail - electrification? HS2
Grid (undersea link)
Resilient communities working from home but isolation a problem?
Research
Battery storage
